Former Local Man To Marry Saturday

(SPECIAL TO THE TIMES)

New York, Dec. 28.—The marriage of George A. Grenier, 24, a former Gettysburg resident, to Miss Leona Malinoski, 18, of New York, will take place Saturday in St. James' Lutheran church here. The couple obtained their license to marry at the marriage bureau on Wednesday.

Mr. Grenier, a son of George and Daisy Deller Grenier, was born in Gettysburg. He resides at 424 West Fifty-sixth street, New York. The bride-to-be, who is a daughter of Walter and Estella Malinoski, was born in Hazleton, Pa.

FORMER LOCAL MEN INVOLVED IN NEW FIGHT

Millard Tawney May Be Deposed As Harrisburg's Fire Chief.

TUCKEY SLATED FOR NEW OFFICE

Three men, one a native of Gettysburg, and two others who formerly resided and are well known here, are involved in a political dispute in Harrisburg that may lead to some interesting developments.

The three men involved are: Millard M. Tawney, native of Gettysburg, and fire chief at Harrisburg; J. Calvin "Haps" Frank, former assistant football coach at Gettysburg college and councilman-elect of Harrisburg; and Russell T. Tuckey, former star athlete at Gettysburg college, who was summarily "fired" from the post of playground supervisor at Harrisburg during the recent political campaign. All are well known here.

The political dispute that is brewing came about in the following manner.

Tawney on Skids

Tuckey pledged his support to Frank in the recent political campaign and lost his position as playground supervisor. Frank was successful in his campaign for councilman.

Frank recently announced his choice for important posts in the department to which he will be assigned, that of Harrisburg parks and public property, as follows: Edward Halbert to replace Millard M. Tawney as fire chief; Tuckey to succeed V. Grant Forrer as assistant director of parks.

Some of the Harrisburg councilmen have voiced their objection to Frank's appointments and have announced that they will contest the appointments when the Harrisburg council reorganizes next Monday.

Council's Move

Harrisburg city council's first move against Frank, that of shearing him of the maintenance of city hall, stirred up a storm of protest among the thousands who voted for him in November. This move, which gives Councilman Burtness charge of city hall, removes a number of jobs from Frank's control.

At the recent budget meeting Frank is said to have told the councilmen in no uncertain terms just what he thought of the procedure. "It's strange," he is quoted as saying.

SOCIAL SURVEY IS PROGRESSING

16 Local Women Make 704 Calls And Ten In County Complete 55.

Progress on the real estate and social survey now under way in Gettysburg and vicinity was reported today by Professor Fred C. Troxell, superintendent.

Sixteen women solicitors in the borough reported having made 704 interviews, and for the most part they are being courteously received. Ten rural solicitors have completed 55 interviews, and eight field men are engaged in securing information as to the size, location and construction of all homes and buildings, the location of fire plugs and lights.

Eight women in the office are compiling all data and four drafts-men are working on maps.

Information secured by the interviews is being held strictly confidential and no names are placed on the questionnaires. Information concerning employment and certain social conditions is being held for the state social survey which is expected to start within a few days.

FLIGHT FOR LIFE

After a hazardous air dash from Houston, Texas, Sue Trammell, five-month-old baby, was taken to Johns Hopkins hospital at Baltimore, Maryland, for a brain operation to save her life. The baby is shown being carried from the plane by a nurse assisted by an airport attendant. At right is the child's uncle and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Trammell. James R. Wedell, speed flier who piloted the airplane on the wind-tossed trip, is shown at the right as he left the ship at Baltimore. Braving strong icy winds, Wedell drove his plane over the 1,400-mile trip in slightly more than 11 hours. (Associated Press Photos.)

MERCURY HITS NEW LOW HERE

Three Degrees Above Zero Is Recorded In Town Wednesday.

Winter hit the thermometer and other solar plexus blow Wednesday night and the mercury sank to still another new low—three degrees above zero, according to Dr. Henry Stewart, local weather recorder. On Tuesday night, the lowest temperature was 10 degrees above zero.

Doctor Stewart said he believes the low mark this winter is considerably under the lowest temperature recorded last winter.

Both York and Harrisburg reported sub-zero weather. Wednesday night.

(By The Associated Press) It was bitter cold today in many places, 24 degrees below zero at Northfield, Vermont; 16 below at St. Paul, Minnesota; from 20 to 52 below in the interior of Canada, 42 below at Bolsters Mills, Maine.

New snow flurried over the lake regions and the St. Lawrence valley. Light rains struck Texas and the north Pacific slope.

A blizzard raged about Malone, in the Adirondacks. Another swept off Lake Erie to strike Watertown, New York.

Fresh drifts made transportation more difficult on already clogged roads. Three fishing vessels out of Portland, Maine, were missing with crews of 2, 8 and 10.

Coast guardsmen put out from Chicago to seek a Lake Michigan fishing vessel with 3 aboard.

New York city had its coldest weather of three years with the temperature dropping to 9 above. Temperatures of 6 at Chicago and 10 at Boston represented partial relief from a bitter night.

County Couple Is Married Wednesday

Miss Mildred Willet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Willet, McSherrystown and Charles Horwedel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pius Horwedel, Centennial, were united in marriage Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock at a nuptial mass in St. Mary's Catholic church, McSherrystown. The Rev. Dr. L. A. Reutter, rector, officiated.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marie Willet, while Bernard Carbaugh, New Oxford, served as bestman.

The wedding party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march from Wagner's Lohengrin. Mendelssohn's wedding march was used as the recessional.

The bride wore a gown of blue flat crepe with silver hat and slippers. Her sister was attired in a dress of red crepe with silver hat and slippers.

A breakfast was served at the home of the bride-groom's parents following the ceremony.

LETTERS OF ESTATE

Letters of administration on the estate of Edmund J. Sponseller, late of Mt. Joy township, were issued to J. M. Mickle and the Littlestown National bank at the office of Robert E. Fisher, register and recorder, Wednesday. The estate is valued at $7,000.

Brady Armors Are Parents Of Girl

A nine-pound daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Brady Armor, of Newburgh, New York, today. Both mother and child are reported doing nicely. Mrs. Armor will be remembered as the former Miss Jean Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Miller, of Gettysburg. This is the Armors' second child, the first being a boy.

MASONS ENJOY ANNUAL DINNER

Dr. John Bennett, York, and Rev. H. S. Fox Deliver Addresses.

Two Masonic addresses, one by Dr. John H. Bennett, roentgenologist at the West Side sanitarium, York, and the other by the Rev. Howard S. Fox, pastor of Trinity Reformed church here, featured the annual St. John's day dinner of Good Samaritan lodge, 336, Free and Accepted Masons, of Gettysburg, at the Hotel Gettysburg, Wednesday evening. One hundred and one Masons, including a number of visitors, were in attendance.

Doctor Bennett spoke on the subject, "Fundamental Masonry," and in an interesting address he outlined many of the earlier traditions of Masonry. The Rev. Mr. Fox's subject was "The Apron," one of the symbols of the Masonic fraternity.

Before the dinner, the Masons met at the lodge rooms, center square, and then marched to the hotel in a body.

John Settle, immediate past master of the lodge, was toastmaster at the banquet. Gung singing was led by Arthur E. Hutchison.

A turkey dinner was served.

F. C. MCADDEN FOUND DEAD IN BEDROOM TODAY

83-Year-Old Resident Dies Of Heart Attack This Morning.

HOLD FUNERAL 2 P. M. SUNDAY

Franklin Cornelius McCadden, 83, was found dead of a heart attack on the floor of his bedroom at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Erney L. Myers, 300 North Stratton street, at 8 o'clock this morning.

Mr. McCadden, a native of York, but for many years a resident of New Oxford, apparently was stricken shortly after he arose. Although he had been in failing health for several years, Mr. McCadden ate a hearty supper, Wednesday evening, and retired in his usual health.

Mr. McCadden was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael McCadden, and spent the greater part of his life in New Oxford, where he was well-known as a painter. For the past six years he lived in Gettysburg with Mr. and Mrs. Myers. Mrs. McCadden, whose maiden name was Miss Rachel Catherine Haverstock, of near Hunterstown, died in June, 1925.

Funeral On Sunday Mr. McCadden was a member of St. Paul's Reformed church, New Oxford, and fraternally he was a member of the Patriotic Order Sons of America and the Sons of Veterans, both of New Oxford.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Coyne, of Lake Aerial, Pa., and Mrs. Erney L. Myers, Gettysburg; one granddaughter, and by two brothers, Aloysius McCadden, New Oxford, and Louis McCadden, Biglerville R. D.

Funeral services from the Myers' home, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock the Rev. A. P. Frantz, superintendent of the Hoffman orphanage, officiating. Interment in the New Oxford cemetery.

The body may be viewed at the Myers' home, Saturday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Jacob H. Marker, 77, Littlestown, died Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the West Side sanitarium, York. Death was due to a complication of diseases and followed an illness of several weeks. He had been a patient at the hospital for the past three weeks and had undergone an operation there Monday of last week.

Mr. Marker was a son of the late Jacob and Sarah Marker, Mayberry, Maryland. He had been engaged in farming until about thirty years ago when he retired.

LOST SUITCASE IS RECOVERED

A suitcase containing some personal effects, lost by Maurice E. Munshower, McKnightstown, on the Lincoln highway, between Gettysburg and McKnightstown, December 9, was recovered by local state police at the home of Lee Muth, Monterey, Wednesday afternoon.

When the suitcase was lost, state police were informed that the driver of a car with New Jersey license plates had picked up the bag. The license number of the machine was learned, and state police learned the identity of the owner by corresponding with police in New Jersey.

The car was registered in the name of Emory Muth, but the owner said his brother, Lee, was operating the machine on December 9. Lee said he did not read newspaper accounts of the lost suitcase at the time.

Fright Proves Fatal To Boy, 2, Few Hours Before Release From Quarantine

John Weikert, Jr., A Victim Of Heart Attack, After Being Frightened By Spinning Wheels Of Mechanical Truck, A Christmas Gift; Quarantine Is Lifted Today.

YOUNGSTER DECLINES AFTER BEING SCARED BY TOY; PRIVATE SERVICES

Frightened by the spinning wheels of a mechanical truck which he had picked up after his father had demonstrated it to him caused the death at 4:20 o'clock this morning of a two-year-old boy a few hours before the quarantine was to be lifted from his parents' home thus releasing himself and his mother from a 21-day diphtheria isolation.

John Weikert, Jr., two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Weikert, Union township, was the victim of a Christmas toy, a gift from a sympathetic and kind hearted neighbor.

The home that would have been gladdened by the lifting of its diphtheria quarantine was cast in gloom and a little boy, whose heart was bubbling over with enthusiastic glee and amazement by the workings of a mechanical truck, that skipped across the floor with remarkable speed, died of a heart attack, induced by the fright of the spinning wheels as the truck was lifted from the floor, according to the mother's story to County Health Officer John Deatrick today.

Twenty-one days ago Mrs. Weikert and her son, an only child, were ill. The family physician diagnosed their ailment as diphtheria and the county health officer was instructed to quarantine the home.

The father remained in isolation with his wife and son and for three weeks the care and attention of a devoted husband and father harvested the fruits of a rapid return to health of his wife and baby.

Shannon Gives Scout Medals To Local Boys

Four Gettysburg Boy Scouts, members of St. Francis Xavier's Catholic troop, who were unable to reach Washington, during the recent storm, to receive scout merit awards from President Roosevelt, received their badges from Major General Edward C. Shannon, lieutenant-governor of Pennsylvania, Wednesday.

The four scouts who received their badges Wednesday are: Gilbert Reed, Lloyd Reed, David Thomas and Fred Knox.

The scouts had departed early on the morning of December 15 to receive their badges from Mr. Roosevelt but due to the icy and slippery conditions of the road were forced to return after they had traveled a mile beyond Emmitsburg.

Pacific Coast Colleges' Real Attendance Rises; Duke Becomes Drawing Power.

BY ALAN GOULD

Things are all cluttered up with claims and counter-claims of new high marks in 1933 college football attendance. We thought the last roundup of figures had been warbled but the demands are strong for an encore.

"Santa Clara's football attendance was nearer 205,000 than the 105,000, which appeared in your column in the Oakland Tribune," writes a student committee' from this California college. "They played to 55,000 in the California game and to 60,000 in the St. Mary's game."

From Louis J. Trabucco of Oakland comes more specific data showing a total attendance of 208,000 for seven games played by Santa Clara, which is going to Honolulu for two more contests during the holiday season. It represents an increase of 100 per cent over the attendance for 1932 and compares with the best gains in the country.

From Berkeley come revised figures from Kenneth Prestley, director of the Associated Students' News bureau, showing that the University of California Bears in ten games played before an aggregate of 390,000 spectators, as compared with the 1932 total of 321,000. This is the best record since 1931 and rates the Bears second to Southern California in the tabulation of Pacific Coast returns, pending the possibility of further rebuttal from Stanford or St. Mary's, of both.

Duke Draws 'Em

The figures fairly leap from Durham, North Carolina, to show that the Duke Blue Devils are entitled to top ranking as a drawing card throughout the south.

The estimates vary, but it seems Wallace Wade's team played before about 80,000 cash customers at home and at least 50,000 "on the road" for a total of 140,000 in ten games.

FRANCE MAY DROP BOMBERS

Country Willing To Abolish Defense Plan If Other Nations Agree.

Paris, Dec. 28 (AP).—France is willing to destroy half her bombing planes immediately if other nations do likewise as a sign of her will to international peace, it was learned on high authority Wednesday night.

A proposal along this line is to be made at Geneva.

Available figures show that reduction by half of France's present strength of bombing planes would leave about sixteen squadrons of bombers, or approximately 175 craft, in active service.

Hitler Proposal Rejected

It was learned that France also will propose signing a general disarmament agreement along the lines formulated at Paris last September during Franco-British arms conversations between Stanley Baldwin, British president of the council and lord privy seal, with Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, and Capt. Anthony Eden of the British air service; and the then Premier Eduard Daladier and Foreign Minister Paul Bounour, of France.

France rejected Chancellor Hitler's recent demands for German rearmament and Premier Mussolini's plan for League of Nations reforms as Edouard Daladier, minister of war, worked out frontier defense problems with Paul Hymans, the Belgian foreign minister.

The French cabinet also took a stand against direct negotiations between Chancellor Hitler and Premier Camille Chautemps. Although a way was left open for "informative" exchanges through ambassadors.

Patrol Believes In Locking Cars

During the past month members of the civilian conservation corps in 92 camps in the state forests and on state game lands completed 68 miles of new truck trails, partly completed 340 miles and repaired 88 miles.

Telephone line construction included 19 miles completed and 50 miles partly completed and repaired. Some 600 acres of state forest were improved by removing dead and inferior trees to stimulate the growth of the remaining stand. Six new fish dams were completed and five dams for the prevention of floods were started.

The emergency forest workers spent 20 days of the past month in the woods. The average number of men from each camp available for woods work was 102. Although the average number of men enrolled in each camp is 167, not all the members are available for woods work because some are kept in camp as a result of sickness, while others are required for camp duties, such as sanitation, mess, detail, and other routine work.

CONTESTS HIS ACCEPTS WORDS OUSTING BY F. R. AS MAN'S WILL

William E. Humphrey Appeals To United States Court Of Claims.

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP).—William E. Humphrey today took to the United States Court of Claims his contention that President Roosevelt's action in ordering him removed as a member of the federal trade commission last October was "illegal and void."

In a petition filed with the court Humphrey, a republican, demanded from the United States $1,251.39 he said was due him as his salary from October 8 to November 30.

Disclosing for the first time the full correspondence between himself and the president, Humphrey placed before the court the transcript of four letters from Mr. Roosevelt. Two of them requested his resignation, a third accepted his resignation although Humphrey contended none had been offered while a fourth contained only these words:

"I am in receipt of your letter of September 27. Effective as of this date (October 7) you are hereby removed from the office of commissioner of the federal trade commission."

The controversy between the president and Humphrey which already has been picked up by a political issue by some republicans and is certain to be aired in the coming congressional session has been simmering either beneath the surface or in the open since last July.

Humphrey refused to relinquish his post, even after the direct order from Mr. Roosevelt, but the commission notified Humphrey that it had voted to recognize the executive order of the president.

Register Of Wills Records Will Of Deceased Man As Repeated By Relatives.

Harrisburg, Dec. 28.—Words uttered by Nathan Katz, late of Harrisburg, in his last illness and later related by relatives were recorded Wednesday at the courthouse as his will.

Because the three short sentences, spoken just before Katz lost consciousness, were heard by three witnesses and because they are testamentary in character, Register of Wills Meade D. Detweiler, Jr., and the paper will be accepted as a will and will be admitted to probate.

Katz was stricken with what is described as a convulsion, December 7 he fell moaning to the floor of a third street store. His brother, Joseph Katz, was summoned and Katz was taken to his brother's apartment.

He appeared to have recovered, when he suddenly was stricken again and Joseph Katz finally succeeded in locating Dr. Bernard Viener, formerly of Gettysburg, in a downtown theater.

Shortly after Dr. Viener arrived, Katz said:

"I'm afraid this is the end. I want you people here to hear my will. Whatever I've got is to go to Mom." Katz was unconscious for two days immediately after the utterance. Then he died in a city hospital.

Because such a will can dispose of only personal property, Katz's mother will inherit but $700 of the $2700 estate. The residue is in Philadelphia realty and will be inherited by heirs determined under Pennsylvania intestate laws.

Deputy Register of Wills James G. Miles said such a will has not been probated here for six years.

BABE O. K. AFTER PLANE FLIGHT

Texas Youngster, 5 Months, May Be Operated Upon On Friday.

Baltimore, Dec. 28.—Showing no ill effects from her dramatic 1,400-mile airplane flight through the worst of this winter's storms, little Sue Trammel, 5-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Trammel, of Houston, Texas, coos in her crib at the Johns Hopkins hospital while preparations are underway for an operation, possibly tomorrow, on her brain.

Dr. Walter E. Dandy, internationally known brain surgeon, declined to comment on his patient or her condition other than to remark that "the operation will not be performed before Friday."

Has Water On Brain

The infant is suffering from hydrocephalus, or water on the brain, a disease that resulted in the death of another of Mr. and Mrs. Trammel's children several months ago.

When Sue's parents were advised by Houston physicians that their infant daughter had the same malady and were told that an operation should be performed by Dr. Dandy they chartered an airplane, with James R. Wedell, speed pilot, at the controls, and left the Texas city at 3 p. m. Tuesday.

Despite treacherous head winds that kept the plane rocking like a rowboat in a heavy sea, Wedell brought the plane down at Logan field at 1:57 a. m. Wednesday, making the trip in three minutes less than eleven hours. He landed on a field covered with deep snow and ice, that kept all intercity planes on the ground throughout Tuesday.

A nurse and several relatives accompanied the infant and its parents, it being the first airplane trip for any of the party.

LIQUOR STORE PRICES DROP

State Control Board Chairman Says Canadian Liquors Will Be Higher.

Harrisburg, Dec. 28 (AP).—Several standard brands of liquor will be available in state stores January 2 at prices lower than those charged for the same brands in Canada, Robert S. Gawthrop, state control board chairman, said today.

Replying to criticisms of the liquor control board because of high prices it planned to charge, Gawthrop disclosed that the Pennsylvania stores will undersell some Canadian liquors.

"For example," he said "Teachers High Grade Cream," a Scotch whiskey, is listed by the Ontario liquor board in their price list of November 16, 1933, at $3.60 a bottle while our price is $3.35 for the same article.

"For White Horse, Ontario's price is $3.85 while ours is $3.65."

"For Old Bush Mills, Irish whiskey, Ontario's price is $3.85 while ours is $3.75."

"For Hennessy, Three Star Brandy, Ontario's price is $4.75 while ours is $4."

"Many other similar examples will be disclosed by comparing their price list with ours."

PHILADELPHIA

December 25th, 1933

Gentlemen:-

We take this opportunity of advising you that your paper will occupy a prominent place on the advertising schedule for Blue Sunoco during the coming year.

In 1933 we were highly pleased with the improvement in our business, due first, we believe to the uniform high quality of Blue Sunoco, and second, to our extensive use of newspaper advertising, informing motorists about the merits of Sunoco products, in which your newspaper has played its full part.

Very truly yours,
SUN OIL COMPANY

Few national advertisers more consistently stick to newspapers than the Sun Oil Company, manufacturers of Blue Sunoco, "the all petroleum motor fuel" and Sunoco Motor Oil, "the only Mercury Made motor oil".

The wisdom of this policy is seen in the attached letter in which the Company states that in 1933 their business showed a marked improvement and attributes much of this splendid record to newspaper advertising.

If a product such as gasoline, on which there is a very small profit per gallon, can see fit to employ newspapers to tell motorists about the superlative merits of Blue Sunoco, then hadn't you, Mr. Advertiser, better give another thought to the sales cooperation which the newspapers of America offer?

FRANCE MAY DROP BOMBERS

Country Willing To Abolish Defense Plan If Other Nations Agree.

Paris, Dec. 28 (AP)—France is willing to destroy half her bombing planes immediately if other nations do likewise as a sign of her will to international peace, it was learned on high authority Wednesday night.

A proposal along this line is to be made at Geneva.

Available figures show that reduction by half of France's present strength of bombing planes would leave about sixteen squadrons of bombers, or approximately 175 craft, in active service.

Hitler Proposal Rejected

It was learned that France also will propose signing a general disarmament agreement along the lines formulated at Paris last September during Franco-British arms conversations between Stanley Baldwin, British president of the council and Lord privy seal, with Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, and Capt. Anthony Eden of the British air service; and the then Premier Eduard Daladier and Foreign Minister Paul Bounour, of France.

France rejected Chancellor Hitler's recent demands for German rearmament and Premier Mussolini's plan for League of Nations reforms as Edouard Daladier, minister of war, worked out frontier defense problems with Paul Hymans, the Belgian foreign minister.

The French cabinet also took a stand against direct negotiations between Chancellor Hitler and Premier Camille Chautemps. Although a way was left open for "informative" exchanges through ambassadors.

CONTESTS HIS ACCEPTS WORDS
OUSTING BY F. R. AS MAN'S WILL

William E. Humphrey Appeals To United States Court Of Claims.

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP)—William E. Humphrey today took to the United States Court of Claims his contention that President Roosevelt's action in ordering him removed as a member of the federal trade commission last October was "illegal and void."

In a petition filed with the court Humphrey, a republican, demanded from the United States $1251.39 he said was due him as his salary from October 8 to November 30.

Disclosing for the first time the full correspondence between himself and the president, Humphrey placed before the court the transcript of four letters from Mr. Roosevelt. Two of them requested his resignation a third accepted his resignation although Humphrey contended none had been offered while a fourth contained only these words:

"I am in receipt of your letter of September 27. Effective as of this date (October 7), you are hereby removed from the office of commissioner of the federal trade commission."

The controversy between the president and Humphrey which already has been picked up by a political issue by some republicans and is certain to be aired in the coming congressional session has been simmering either beneath the surface or in the open since last July.

Humphrey refused to relinquish his post, even after the direct order from Mr. Roosevelt, but the commission notified Humphrey that it had voted to recognize the executive order of the president.

Split Paternity Of Twins Upheld In Effect By South Dakota Judge

Yankton S. D. Dec. 28 (AP)—The possibility that twins might have a split paternity was, in effect, upheld here Wednesday in a divorce decree granted by Circuit Court Judge R. B. Tripp.

Judge Tripp would not comment on his ruling in allowing a default decree to Paul Paddie, father-in-law of near Padden but he accorded Paddie the one of the twins whose father he had claimed to be while awarding the other to the mother. Paddie had charged infidelity.

The decision recalled a similar case in which Prof. Nord Boman, noted student of genetics at the Swedish University of Lund testified in a court in that country that, from a scientific point of view, it is possible for twins to have different fathers. The Boman opinion was rendered in February 1932 when a husband asserted he was parent of only one of the twins in question.

After blood examinations and other tests the Swedish court upheld the husband's contention that

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Accepts New Position: Robert B. McClean, who began his newspaper career with the Gettysburg Compiler and Star and Sentinel, and who was with the Harrisburg Telegraph for a number of years and has lately been manager of subscriptions for the Pitsburg Post, is to take up a similar position with the New York Evening Post at the beginning of the New Year.

The Star and Sentinel has just completed the installation of a Model "K" Linotype. This machine is one of the latest products of the Mergenthaler company, company, builders of Type-setting machines, and is specially adapted to the performance of the range of work encountered in an office like ours. With this machine in full operation, handling the composition for the paper, we will be able to give more prompt attention to other features of the printing business.

Here and There: Dr. H. C. Landau, the Chambersburg street druggist, has sold the good will and fixtures of his store to Dr. James B. Morris, for twenty-five years a practicing physician in Punxsutawney. The change has taken effect.

At a mid-winter meeting of the Board of Trustees of the college, President Granville will ask for an appropriation of $5,000 for the erection of an infirmary.

The Christ Lutheran parsonage on Springs avenue is nearly ready for occupancy, and the Rev. A. E. Wagner has had his household goods moved into it.

A dispatch from York to the Philadelphia North American says: "William McGuigan, a linotype operator, while ill in bed, captured a burglar. He was almost asleep when he heard someone crawl into his room. He grappled with the man and called for assistance. Mr. McGuigan is a son of David McGuigan, of Chambersburg street, and is employed on the "York Dispatch."

Christmas in the Churches: A Christmas Cantata, "The Holy One of Israel," was given in the United Brethren church on Sunday evening, before a congregation which filled the church.

The parts were well rendered and the costumes were very effective.

Midnight services were held in the Memorial church of the Prince of Peace on Christmas Eve. A large choir rendered special music. The Sunday school held its entertainment on the Saturday following, St. John's Day.

Read The Bible With Us Daily

Concerning Damascus. Hamath is confounded, and Arpad; for they have heard evil tidings: they are fainthearted; there is sorrow on the sea; it cannot be quiet.

Damascus is waxed feeble, and turneth herself to flee, and fear hath seized on her; anguish and sorrows have taken her, as a woman in travail.

How is the city of praise not left, the city of my joy! Therefore her young men shall in her streets, and all the men of war shall be cut off in that day, saith the Lord of hosts.

And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus, and it shall consume the palaces of Ben-hadad.

Concerning Kedar, and concerning the kingdoms of Hazor, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon shall smite, thus saith the Lord: Arise ye, go up to Kedar, and spoil the men of the east.

Their tents and their flocks shall they take away: they shall take to themselves their curtains, and all their vessels, and their camels; and they shall cry unto them, Fear is on every side.

Jeremiah 49: 23-29.

St. Francis Xavier: The exercises by the St. Francis Xavier Sunday school were held Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. A special Christmas program was given.

A dawn service was held on Christmas morning at six o'clock in St. James' church. Appropriate exercises were given and the choir sang "Hallelujah Chorus." In the evening at seven o'clock, the Sunday school held its special services in the chapel. The infant school held its exercises Tuesday afternoon.

Fruit Growers' Meeting: The Ninth Annual Convention of the Adams County Fruit Growers' Association, held in Bedersville last week, was well attended and interesting even beyond the average of these profitable gatherings. The day lecturers and evening entertainers were of high grade, and the display of fruits and apparatus exceptionally good.

Parent Teachers' Meeting: Although nothing definite was decided in a proposed plan of opening the public schools of the town during certain evenings, so that the pupils may gather, play games and listen to inspiring talks and good programs, the advisability of this proposition was discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the Parent Teachers' Association in the High School building on Friday evening, December 12.

This idea, thought one, might be profitable in manufacturing towns, but it would never do in Gettysburg. Those who spoke on the subject, Mrs. H. M. Roth, Mrs. Power, Miss Helen Cope, Prof. Calvin Hamilton, Prof. Roth. The High School orchestra played several selections. Prof. A. T. Wentz also spoke on the new law, which requires the reading of the Bible in public schools.

Mrs. McPherson, Mrs. Stansbury, Mrs. Wm. A. Martin, Mrs. J. Elmer Musselman and Mrs. Evelyn Holtzworth were appointed visiting committee for the coming month. The program committee is composed of the following: Mrs. J. I. Mumper, Miss Rosa Scott and Wilson Bream.

Told of Washington Trip: In the St. James' church Sunday evening, the Rev. Baker told of the trip of himself and C. S. Reaser to Washington, as members of the Committee of One Thousand created by the National Anti-Saloon League convention at Columbus, Ohio, in November, to carry direct to Congress, the League's petition for a Constitutional amendment that will give nation-wide prohibition.

Dr. Rothrock Resigns: Dr. Joseph T. Rothrock, after many years' service as a member of the State Forestry Commission, has resigned. During his service he was intimately connected with the forestry interests in Franklin county. He founded what is now the great tuberculosis sanitarium at Mont Alto and he was active in establishing the Forestry Academy there.

He resigned in order to have more time to himself.

Personal: Donald Coover, a student in the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, is spending the holidays at his home.

Wilford Barbehenn has returned from Pierce Business College, Philadelphia, to spend some time with friends here.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. William McClure, of Phillipsburg, Mont., on Dec. 10th, a son, Charles Derickson, Jr. Mrs. McClure was formerly Miss Blanche Klinger, of Gettysburg.

CARE
Through every life there runs the thread of care
That winds and twists itself about the years;
High place or low, it everywhere appears.

Not long can man walk pleasure's thoroughfare.
Upon his shoulders burdens he must bear,
Know doubt and disappointment, failure's fears,
And soon or late, pale sorrow's bitter tears.

For Time from these no favorite will spare.
Nor wealth nor place nor power can keep away
The common griefs which Age insists upon;
Man must have faith and courage to be gay.

The joy he seeks is bravely to be won.
Who reads the book of life may be assured
The happiest hearts have many an ache endured.

FORBIDDEN VALLEY

By William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: By the help of Tenn-Og, wounded, to the Canadian lake where Klosee Indian whom he had befriended, Curt Tennon and Paul, his partner, have escaped the Klosees and are taking their friend, Ralph Nichols, badly hurt, to a hospital. Curt has temporarily abandoned his hunt for Igor Karakhan, wealthy crook, to get Ralph to a hospital. Curt hopes to have news of Sonya Volkov, whom he loves although she has run away to Karakhan from a band of Klosee Indians his party just has halted. Tenn-Og has talked with them.

Chapter 39

NEWS OF SONYA

The main band, Tenn-Og said, had discovered the escape of the whites and had started north to Karakhan's place to guard him. These six rumpers had been sent south on the chance that they might catch up with the whites and ambush them.

Sonya was on her way north, nothing had been heard of her since she left with her three guides.

"Do you know where this white man is hiding?" Curt asked Tenn-Og.

At the headwaters lake of the Lilluar, the Indian told him. He himself had once lived at that lake, almost at the very place where the white man's cabin now stood.

A week ago Curt would have considered that information priceless but now it meant little. In a general way he did plan to return later and make a second attempt to get Karakhan, but in all probability the Russian would be out of the Lilluars and gone by that time.

He was nobody's fool, he certainly had read the handwriting on the wall. He had a plane and plenty of gas for it, as LeNor's trading account showed. The wearisome job of following his trackless air path would have to be done all over again.

"How can you go back to your people, Tenn-Og?" he asked. "Those six are going to tell the others that you were with us helping us."

With a grunt and shrug Tenn-Og stated that he did not care whether he went back or not. He was almost an outcast now, he said, because of Siam-Kiale.

Ever since his talk with Tenn-Og that first night, when the Indian gave him so much information voluntarily, Curt had felt that he stood off somehow from the other Klosees. His tones now and his reference to the subject implied there was some bitter personal feud between Siam-Kiale and him.

The stories about the brutality in Siam-Kiale's nature, made Curt sharply uneasy about Sonya. She was up in that country alone, in the charge of Indians who were completely under the thumb of the sub-chief.

If he and the main band overtook her party, he might seize her, brush LeNor aside, and disappear with her somewhere in the unknown country. Once she reached Karakhan she probably would be safe, but any one of a dozen accidents might intervene to strand her in those wild mountains and keep her from reaching him.

As the afternoon wore along, a perceptible change came over Ralph. At first Curt could not decide what the change boded, but as the signs became more pronounced, he recognized their grim meaning. He could never get Ralph out, or even get to the plane with him.

Just at twilight they reached the Iskitinwah mouth, having covered in twenty-four hours a stretch of river which had taken his party four whole days on the up trip. He called a halt. All need of hurrying had passed and the buffeting of the waves was causing Ralph intense pain. The most they could do was to ease him for the little time that remained.

Near the tributary mouth they went ashore on a pine island, the island of black lilies, where Curt had spent some dark hours once. He did not recognize the place till they had landed, and then he would not change. Inland at a mossy spot they spread the sleeping robes and carried Ralph there and laid him down.

All three of them were stumbling from exhaustion. On top of the heavy strain of the fight and the long day of imprisonment they had had no sleep in more than sixty hours and had just finished a terrific stretch of canoe work—twice around the clock without a pause.

Curt made Paul and Tenn-Og eat a little food and then took them a couple of rods aside. "You two lie down," he bade, "and get some rest. In our condition we're fit for nothing and we don't know what's ahead of us. I'll stay up with Ralph. I can do everything that needs to be done. God knows it's not much."

In the eastern sky the moon brightened as night shut down. Filtering through the pine branches, it cast flitting shadows on the woods floor and lay in a wan ghostly flood over Ralph and the wolf-foot and the plot of black lilies. Far away, so far it seemed a mere pinpoint of sound in the night silence, a crescendo wailing arose and was taken up and answered from a dozen mountain peaks.

In the last two hours, since realizing that Ralph was not to be with them, Curt had made up his mind to go back north and try to capture Karakhan. Tenn-Og could take them to that headwater lake. If Smash had kept his rendezvous, they would have a plane and could make the trip in less than three hours.

With any luck at all, he would not only end his long hunt then and there, but he could shield Sonya and bring her out. In spite of her association with Karakhan he left it his duty, as a man to look after her safety. She was a white girl, she had shot square with him and helped him and Paul out of a desperate plight.

Besides he was vaguely beginning to suspect that there was something to her relations with the Russian which he knew nothing about. Her letter to the man and her talk with LeNor stood as mountainous facts against her, but still he was troubled. His bad mistake about Tenn-Og of whose treachery he had been so sure, made him wonder whether he might not be partly mistaken about Sonya too.

The time verged on midnight. Red Antares glittering in the southwest, hung low over the distant peakline. Through the trees he watched it sink and vanish. When he glanced again at Ralph he was surprised to see that the latter's eyes were open.

He took Ralph's hand, to let him know that a friend was with him. Ralph looked around, evidently looking for Sonya. The delirium had passed, he seemed to be in no pain whatever, but he was not altogether clear-headed, and his consciousness was the last faint flare-up.

He gazed up at Curt for a moment. His lips parted. Curt bent lower.

"Where are—where Curt?"

"Down river, Ralph. Back at the Iskitinwah."

"You thought—could get me—out?"

Curt nodded not trusting his voice.

"Where's Sonya Curt? I'd like her—a little talk—"

Curt started to say that Sonya was on her way to Karakhan, but he checked himself. No need to recall that painful fact to Ralph's wandering mind.

"She's sleeping, Ralph. I'll wake her before long. She asked me to—"

"Then she didn't try—to reach him Curt?" Ralph asked, struggling weakly against the fog in his brain. Curt could see him groping to recall the happenings of that dim time before he was stricken. "I thought she did go."

"No, she gave that over, Ralph. I'm glad. She'd have been left alone in there—with those Indians. I tried to tell her so—but she believed she could get out—somehow—afterward."

Curt thought that Ralph's mind must be wandering badly. What did he mean by "left alone in there?" She would be with Karakhan, wouldn't she? And what did Ralph mean by "she'd get out, somehow, afterward?" After what?

"You'll watch out for her now, Curt?" Ralph begged. "She likes you—more than she—lets herself think. You'll take care of her, won't you?"

Curt promised. He felt himself on the verge of something portentous—a discovery of the whole truth about Sonya's trip. Very plainly she had told Ralph.

Before he could word the question in his mind, Ralph's lips were moving again.

"She wanted to—trust you, Curt. Wanted to tell you and ask your help. But she felt she—didn't dare. She wasn't sure—just who you were, and she was afraid you'd—judge her harshly. Afraid you'd—send her back out—if you knew. That would have been—a terrible blow to her. She couldn't rest couldn't live—till she'd hunted him down."

Ralph sank back limp and quiet. A tremor passed through him. For a moment Curt thought it was the end. But then came a faint rally.

The incoherent words he had just listened to bewildered Curt. Ralph was distinctly implying that when Sonya reached the headwaters lake she would be exposed to some great danger.

FORBIDDEN VALLEY

By William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: By the help of Tenn-Og, wounded, to the Canadian lake where Kioshee Indian whom he had befriended, Curt Tennison and Paul, his partner, have escaped the Kioshees and are taking their friend, Ralph Nichols, badly hurt, to a hospital. Curt has temporarily abandoned his hunt for Igor Karakhan, wealthy crook, to get Ralph to a hospital. Curt hopes to have news of Igor Volkov, whom he loves although she has run away to Karakhan, from a band of Kioshee Indians his party just has halted. Tenn-Og has talked with them.

Chapter 39

NEWS OF SONYA

The main band, Tenn-Og said, had discovered the escape of the whites and had started north to Karakhan's place to guard him. These six runners had been sent south on the chance that they might catch up with the whites and ambush them.

Sonya was on her way north; nothing had been heard of her since she left with her three guides.

"Do you know where this white man is hiding?" Curt asked Tenn-Og.

At the headwaters lake of the Lilluar, the Indian told him. He himself had once lived at that lake, almost at the very place where the white man's cabin now stood.

A week ago Curt would have considered that information priceless, but now it meant little. In a general way he did plan to return later and make a second attempt to get Karakhan; but in all probability the Russian would be out of the Lilluars and gone by that time.

He was nobody's fool; he certainly had read the handwriting on the wall. He had a plane and plenty of gas for it, as LeNoir's trading account showed. The wearisome job of following his trackless air path would have to be done all over again.

"How can you go back to your people, Tenn-Og?" he asked. "Those six are going to tell the others that you were with us helping us."

With a grunt and shrug Tenn-Og stated that he did not care whether he went back or not. He was almost an outcast now, he said, because of Siam-Kiale.

Ever since his talk with Tenn-Og that first night, when the Indian gave him so much information voluntarily, Curt had felt that he stood off somehow from the other Kioshees. His tones now and his reference to the subject implied there was some bitter personal feud between Siam-Kiale and him.

The stories about the brutality in Siam-Kiale's nature, made Curt sharply uneasy about Sonya. She was up in that country alone, in the charge of Indians who were completely under the thumb of the sub-chief.

If he and the main band overtook her party, he might seize her, brush LeNoir aside, and disappear with her somewhere in the unknown country. Once she reached Karakhan she probably would be safe; but any one of a dozen accidents might intervene to strand her in those wild mountains and keep her from reaching him.

As the afternoon wore along, a perceptible change came over Ralph. At first Curt could not decide what the change boded; but as the signs became more pronounced, he recognized their grim meanings. He could never get Ralph out, or even get to the plane with him.

Just at twilight they reached the Iskitinwah mouth, having covered in twenty-four hours a stretch of river which had taken his party four whole days on the up trip. He called a halt. All need of hurrying had passed and the buffeting of the waves was causing Ralph intense pain. The most they could do was to ease him for the little time that remained.

Near the tributary mouth they went ashore on a pine island, the island of black lilies, where Curt had spent some dark hours once. He did not recognize the place till they had landed, and then he would not change. Inland at a mossy spot they spread the sleeping robes and carried Ralph there and laid him down.

All three of them were stumbling from exhaustion. On top of the heavy strain of the fight and the long day of imprisonment they had had no sleep in more than sixty hours and had just finished a terrific stretch of canoe work—twice around the clock without a pause.

Curt made Paul and Tenn-Og eat a little food and then took them a couple of rods aside. "You two lie down," he bade, "and get some rest. In our condition we're fit for nothing and we don't know what's ahead of us. I'll stay up with Ralph. I can do everything that needs to be done. God knows it's not much."

In the eastern sky the moon brightened as night shut down. Pliering through the pine branches, it cast filigree shadows on the woods floor and lay in a wan ghostly flood over Ralph and the wolf-foot and the plot of black lilies. Far away, so far it seemed a mere pinpoint of sound in the night silence, a crescendo wailing arose and was taken up and answered from a dozen mountain peaks.

In the last two hours, since realizing that Ralph was not to be with them, Curt had made up his mind to go back north and try to capture Karakhan. Tenn-Og could take them to that headwater lake. If Smash had kept his rendezvous, they would have a plane and could make the trip in less than three hours.

With any luck at all, he would not only end his long hunt then and there, but he could shield Sonya and bring her out. In spite of her association with Karakhan he left it his duty, as a man, to look after her safety. She was a white girl, she had shot square with him and helped him and Paul out of a desperate plight.

Besides he was vaguely beginning to suspect that there was something to her relations with the Russian which he knew nothing about. Her letter to the man and her talk with LeNoir stood as mountainous facts against her, but still he was troubled. His bad mistake about Tenn-Og, of whose treachery he had been so sure, made him wonder whether he might not be partly mistaken about Sonya too.

The time verged on midnight. Red Antares, glittering in the southwest, hung low over the distant peakline. Through the trees he watched it sink and vanish. When he glanced again at Ralph he was surprised to see that the latter's eyes were open.

He took Ralph's hand, to let him know that a friend was with him. Ralph looked around, evidently looking for Sonya. The delirium had passed, he seemed to be in no pain whatever, but he was not altogether clear-headed, and his consciousness was the last faint flare-up.

He gazed up at Curt for a moment. His lips parted. Curt bent lower.

"Where are—we, Curt?" "Down river, Ralph. Back at the Iskitinwah."

"You thought—could get me—out?"

Curt nodded, not trusting his voice.

"Where's Sonya, Curt? I'd like her—a little talk—"

Curt started to say that Sonya was on her way to Karakhan, but he checked himself. No need to recall that painful fact to Ralph's wandering mind.

"She's sleeping, Ralph. I'll wake her before long. She asked me to."

"Then she didn't try—to reach him Curt?" Ralph asked, struggling weakly against the fog in his brain. Curt could see him groping to recall the happenings of that dim time before he was stricken. "I thought she did go."

"No, she gave that over, Ralph."

"I'm glad. She'd have been left alone in there—with those Indians. I tried to tell her so—but she believed she could get out—somehow—afterward."

Curt thought that Ralph's mind must be wandering badly. What did he mean by "left alone in there?" She would be with Karakhan, wouldn't she? And what did Ralph mean by "she'd get out, somehow, afterward?" After what?

"You'll watch out for her now, Curt?" Ralph begged. "She likes you—more than she—lets herself think. You'll take care of her, won't you?"

Curt promised. He felt himself on the verge of something portentous, a discovery of the whole truth about Sonya's trip. Very plainly she had told Ralph.

Before he could word the question in his mind, Ralph's lips were moving again.

"She wanted to—trust you, Curt. Wanted to tell you, and ask your help. But she felt she—didn't dare. She wasn't sure—just who you were; and she was afraid you'd—judge her harshly. Afraid you'd—send her back out—if you knew. That would have been—a terrible blow to her. She couldn't rest, couldn't live—till she'd hunted him down."

Ralph sank back, limp and quiet. A tremor passed through him. For a moment Curt thought it was the end. But then came a faint rally.

The incoherent words he had just listened to bewildered Curt. Ralph was distinctly implying that when Sonya reached the headwaters lake she would be exposed to some great danger.

How is the city of praise not left, the city of my joy!

Therefore her young men shall in her streets, and all the men of war shall be cut off in that day, saith the Lord of hosts.

And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus, and it shall consume the palaces of Ben-hadad.

Concerning Kedar, and concerning the kingdoms of Haror, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon shall smite, thus saith the Lord.
Arise ye, go up to Kedar, and spoil
the men of the east.

Their tents and their flocks shall they take away: they shall take to themselves their curtains, and all their vessels, and their camels; and they shall cry unto them, Fear is on every side.

Jeremiah 49: 23-29

St. Francis Xavier: The exercises by the St. Francis Xavier Sunday school were held Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. A special Christmas program was given.

A dawn service was held on Christmas morning at six o'clock in St. James' church. Appropriate exercises were given and the choir sang "Hallelujah Chorus." In the evening at seven o'clock, the Sunday school held its special services in the chapel. The infant school held its exercises Tuesday afternoon.

Fruit Growers' Meeting: The Ninth Annual Convention of the Adams County Fruit Growers' Association, held in Bednersville last week, was well attended and interesting even beyond the average of these profitable gatherings. The day lecturers and evening entertainers were of high grade, and the display of fruits and apparatus exceptionally good.

Parent Teachers' Meeting: Although nothing definite was decided in a proposed plan of opening the public schools of the town during certain evenings, so that the pupils may gather, play games and listen to inspiring talks and good programs, the advisability of this proposition was discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the Parent Teachers' Association in the High School building on Friday evening, December 12.

This idea, thought one, might be profitable in manufacturing towns but it would never do in Gettysburg. Those who spoke on the subject, Mrs. H. M. Roth, Mrs.
Power, Miss Helen Cope, Prof.
Calvin Hamilton, Prof. Roth.

The High School orchestra played several selections. Prof. A. R.
Wentz also spoke on the new law, which requires the reading of the Bible in public schools.

Mrs. McPherson, Mrs. Stans-
bury, Mrs. Wm. A. Martin, Mrs. J.
Elmer Musselman and Mrs. Evelyn Holtzworth were appointed visiting committee for the coming month.

The program committee is composed of the following: Mrs. J. I.
Mumper, Miss Rosa Scott and Wilson Bream.

Told of Washington Trip: In the St. James' church Sunday evening, the Rev. Baker told of the trip of himself and C. S. Reaser to Washington, as members of the Committee of One Thousand created by the National Anti-Saloon League convention at Columbus, Ohio, in November, to carry direct to Congress, the League's petition for a Constitutional amendment that will give nation-wide prohibition.

Dr. Rothrock Resigns: Dr. Joseph
T. Rothrock, after many years' service as a member of the State Forestry Commission, has resigned. During his service he was intimately connected with the forestry interests in Franklin county. He founded what is now the great tuberculosis sanitarium at Mont Alto and he was active in establishing the Forestry Academy there.

He resigned in order to have more time to himself.

Personal: Donald Coover, a student in the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, is spending the holidays at his home.
Wilford Barbehenn has returned from Pierce Business College, Philadelphia, to spend some time with friends here.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. William McClure, of Philipsburg, Mont., on Dec. 10th, a son, Charles Derickson, Jr. Mrs. McClure was formerly Miss Blanche Klingler, of Gettysburg.

CARE
Through every life there runs the thread of care
That winds and twists itself about the years;
High place or low, it everywhere appears.

Not long can man walk pleasure's thoroughfare.
Upon his shoulders burdens he must bear.

Know doubt and disappointment,
failure's fears,
And soon or late, pale sorrow's bitter tears.

For Time from these no favorite will spare.

Nor wealth nor place nor power can keep away
The common griefs which Age insists upon.
Man must have faith and courage to be gay.

The joy he seeks is bravely to be won.

Who reads the book of life may be assured
The happiest hearts have many an ache endured.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LITERARY MINDED

IT IS not necessary to the love and enjoyment of literature that one must write. But a knowledge of books, and their authors is one of the happy accomplishments of this life. Those who have not experienced the great joy from the reading of books have missed one of life's chief thrills.

George E. Woodberry, who, during his lifetime spread such universal enthusiasm for good books, has this to say about literature: "It is useful to recognize at once the fact that literature is not an object of study, but a mode of pleasure it is not a thing to be known merely like a science, but to be lived. If a book does not yield immediate pleasure to the reader, as direct and intimate as sensation or emotion, it fails with that particular person to discharge the proper function of literature."

A literary minded person has an asset that cannot be taken from him.
His books are his silent friends, and the vast fund of information and enjoyment that each book adds to his experience, forms a background almost impregnable against the onslaughts of fate and misfortune.

Napoleon, dying on the lonely St. Helena, called his faithful valet and asked him to read to him.

Once a worthy thought has been given a place in the world—either in the mind or the heart—then it is that its creator has earned immortality!

Books are to be chosen, like friends, to fit the varying moods of the mind and to feed and nourish it. There are times when nothing soothes and rests the mind like a particular book. We cannot always select a friend who is able to meet the emergency of the mind—but there can be gathered about one a multitude of books from which true solace and understanding may be extracted for every circumstance of joy or sorrow.

The most helpful and entertaining books are those which most clearly and accurately record the essence of human nature in its simplest form. To read of an experience already realized by oneself at once draws an author near to us. We like to feel that an author knew something about us though he had no idea that we existed!

The literary minded are usually the happy minded—always so when among their beloved book friends, at least.

Summing Up Year's Big News

PICTURED on this page are the big news stories which captured your interest in 1933. Summarized briefly, they are:

ROOSEVELT AND THE "NEW DEAL"—In United States the most outstanding news of 1933 came in with President Roosevelt. His promised "new deal" consisted of a vast recovery program embracing banking reforms, a new monetary policy, the NRA, construction work, the civilian conservation corps, relief for farmers and home owners, and a variety of other measures.

COOLIDGE'S DEATH—The year scarcely had begun when ex-President Calvin Coolidge died suddenly at Northampton, Massachusetts.

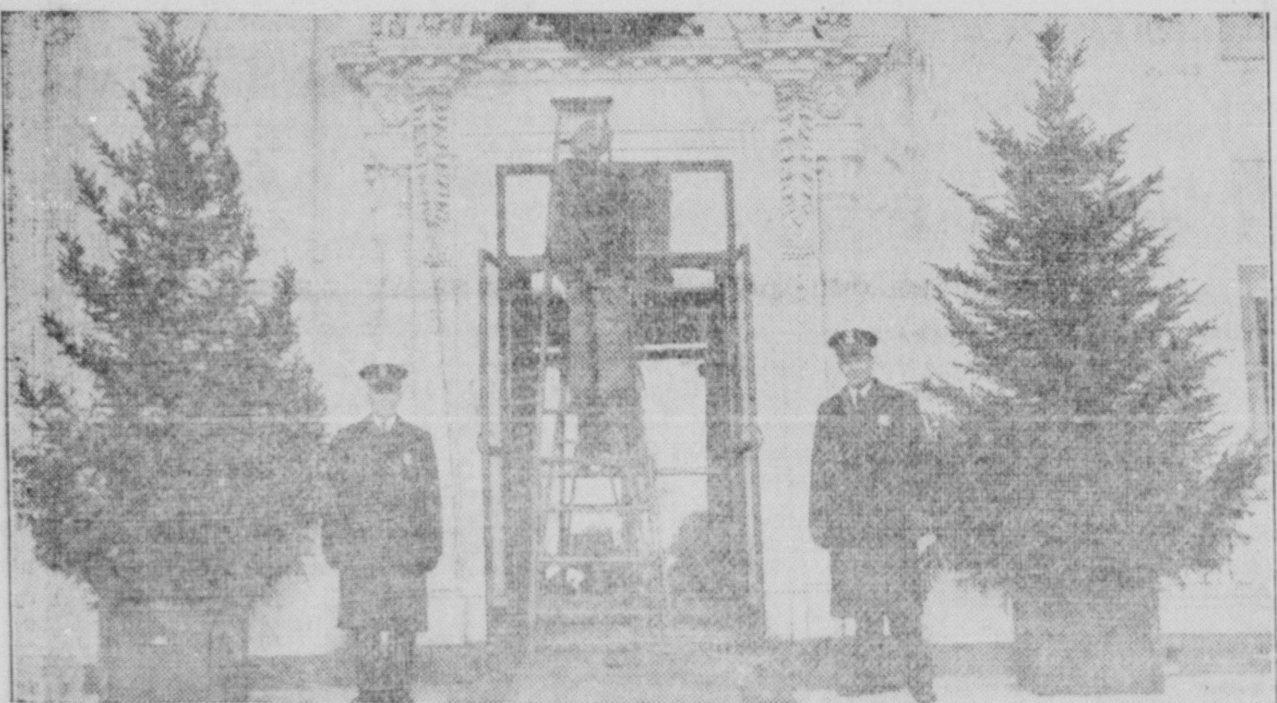

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF ROOSEVELT—Returning from a sea voyage, Franklin D. Roosevelt, then president-elect, was fired on by Giuseppe Zangara at Miami, Florida. Mayor Anton Cermak was fatally wounded and Zangara later was executed for the crime.

AKRON DISASTER—While on a training cruise off the New Jersey coast the navy's great airship, the Akron, fell into the sea during a storm, carrying 74 men to their death.

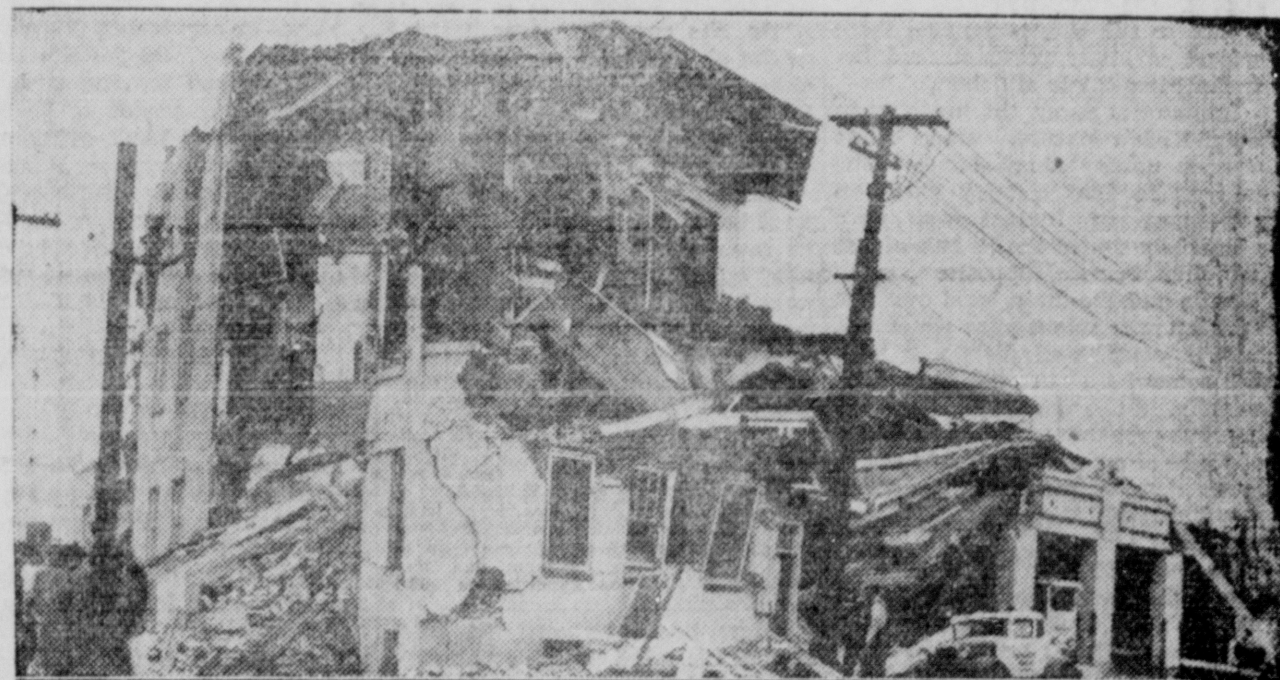

CALIFORNIA EARTHQUAKE—Among the major disasters in the United States in 1933 was the devastating earthquake in southern California, which took approximately 120 lives.

NEWS FROM FOREIGN LANDS—The biggest foreign news came from Germany when Adolf Hitler ascended to power as the country's dictator. The sweeping changes of the new regime furnished topics for discussion around the world. From Soviet Russia to Washington came general Maxim Litvinoff, whose conversations with President Roosevelt led to the recognition of Russia, thereby ending a diplomatic breach of 16 years. Cuba experienced a period of strife and bloodshed that brought the unseating of President Gerardo Machado and his successor, Dr. C. M. deCéspedes.

HISTORY-MAKING FEATS OF AVIATION—Big things were accomplished by aviators in 1933. Probably the most spectacular was the single handed effort of Wiley Post, Oklahoma pilot, who whirled around the world in seven days and 18 hours in his veteran monoplane, the Winnie Mae. In the greatest mass flight in history, a squadron of Italian seaplanes commanded by Italo Balbo made a round trip flight from Italy to Chicago. The Lindberghs took the air for a survey of the northern air routes and extended it into a five-month trip through Europe and back across the south Atlantic to South America before they returned home.

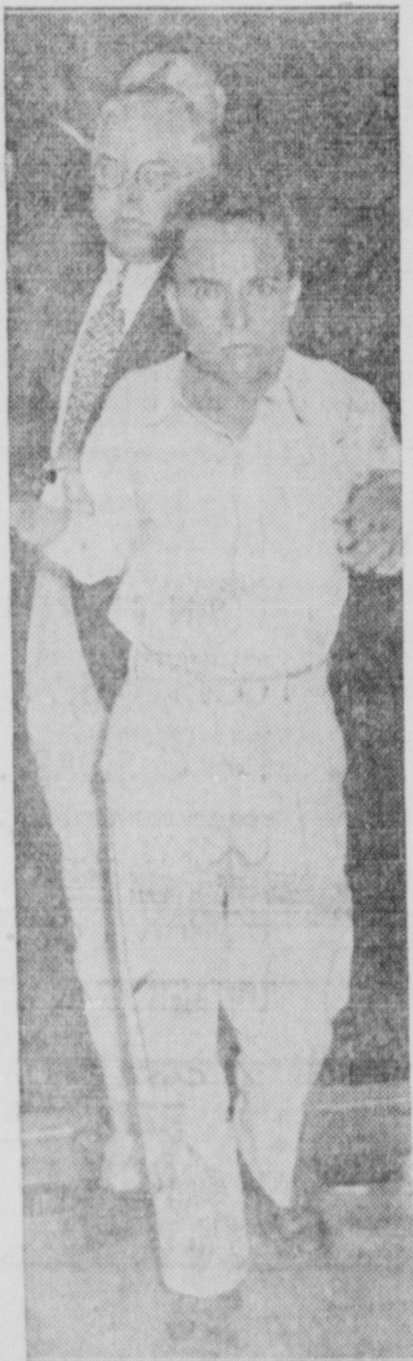

The holiday spirit took possession of the white house as Christmas trees and holly wreaths were put into place at the entrance to the executive mansion, and President Roosevelt started passing out the first of his gifts. The white house holiday season is an old-fashioned one this year, with four generations participating. (Associated Press Photo.)

EARTHQUAKE ROCKS CALIFORNIA—One of the biggest disasters of the year befalls southern California. An earthquake rocks Los Angeles and Long Beach and takes nearly 120 lives. Here is the wreckage of what once was a Long Beach baking company. In addition to the heavy loss of life, the quake caused a huge property damage. (Associated Press Photo.)

Summing Up Year's Big News

PICTURED on this page are the big news stories which captured your interest in 1933. Summarized briefly, they are:

ROOSEVELT AND THE "NEW DEAL"—In United States the most outstanding news of 1933 came in with President Roosevelt. His promised "new deal" consisted of a vast recovery program embracing banking reforms, a new monetary policy, the NRA, construction work, the civilian conservation corps, relief for farmers and home owners, and a variety of other measures.

COOLIDGE'S DEATH—The year scarcely had begun when ex-President Calvin Coolidge died suddenly at Northampton, Massachusetts.

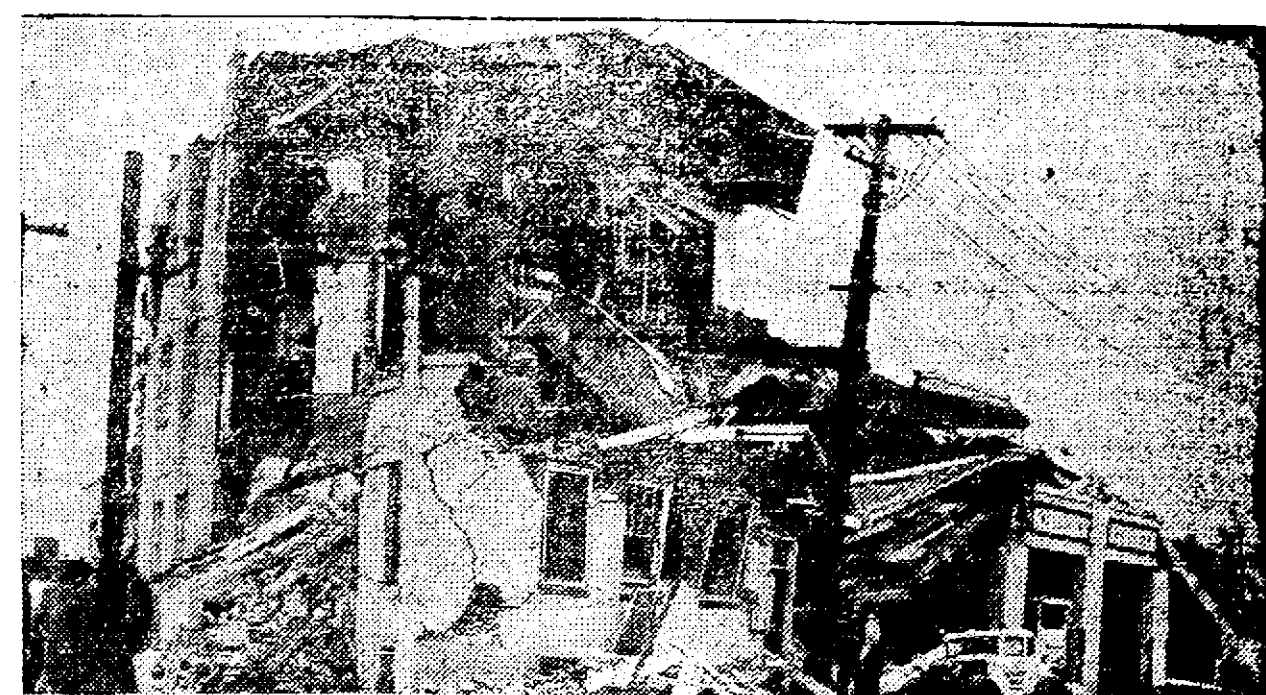

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF ROOSEVELT—Returning from a sea voyage, Franklin D. Roosevelt, then president-elect, was fired on by Giuseppe Zangara at Miami, Florida. Mayor Anton Cermak was fatally wounded and Zangara later was executed for the crime.

AKRON DISASTER—While on a training cruise off the New Jersey coast the navy's great airship, the Akron, fell into the sea during a storm, carrying 74 men to their death.

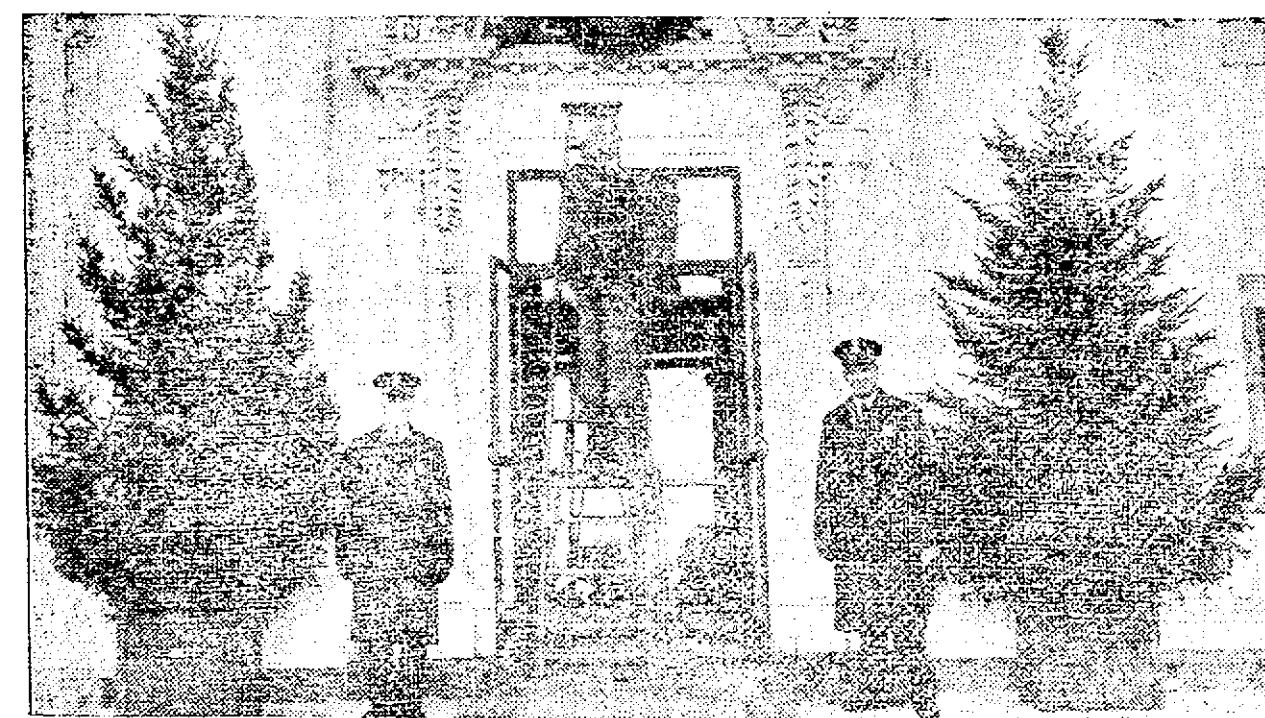

CALIFORNIA EARTHQUAKE—Among the major disasters in the United States in 1933 was the devastating earthquake in southern California, which took approximately 120 lives.

NEWS FROM FOREIGN LANDS—The biggest foreign news came from Germany when Adolf Hitler ascended to power as the country's dictator. The sweeping changes of the new regime furnished topics for discussion around the world. From Soviet Russia to Washington came general Maxim Litvinoff, whose conversations with President Roosevelt led to the recognition of Russia, thereby ending a diplomatic breach of 16 years. Cuba experienced a period of strife and bloodshed that brought the unseating of President Gerardo Machado and his successor, Dr. C. M. de Cespedes.

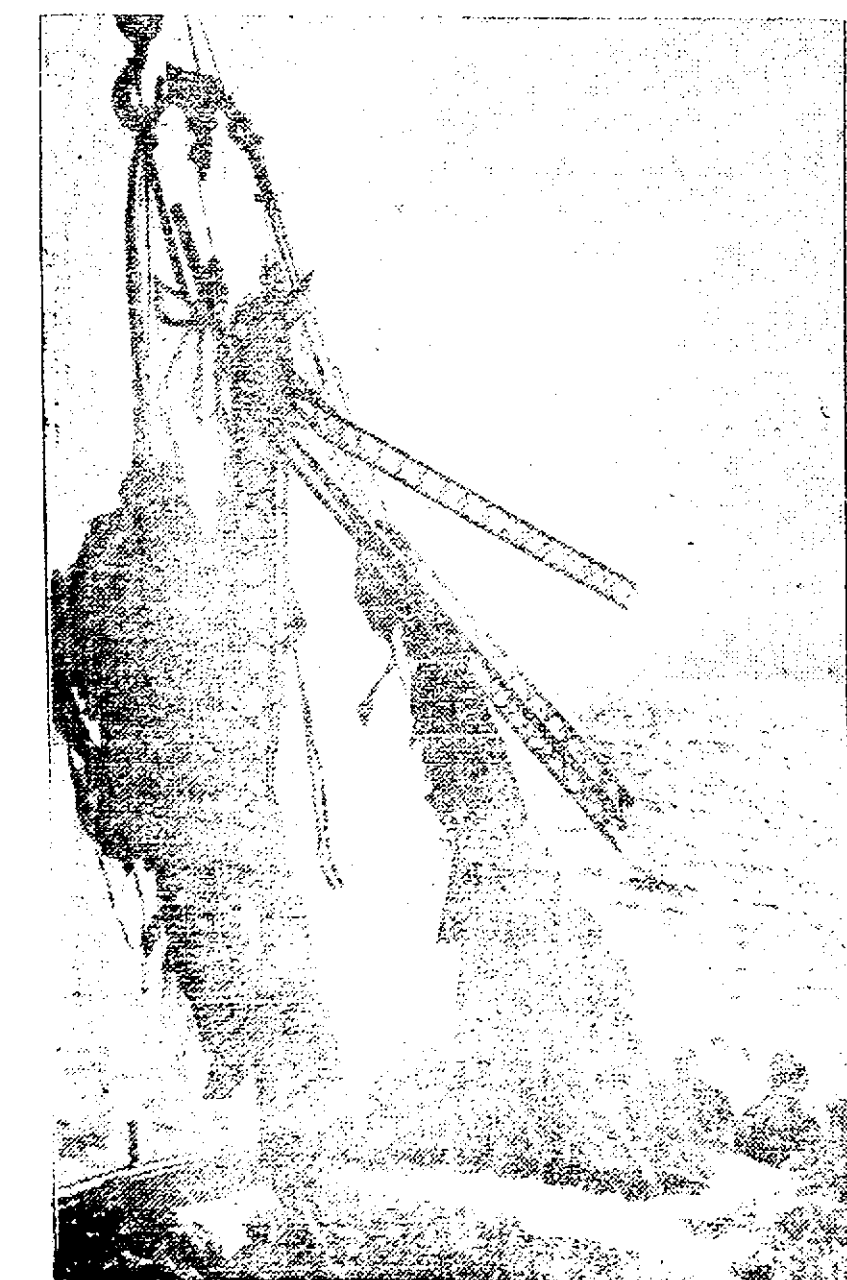

HISTORY-MAKING FEATS OF AVIATION—Big things were accomplished by aviators in 1933. Probably the most spectacular was the single handed effort of Wiley Post, Oklahoma pilot, who whirled around the world in seven days and 18 hours in his veteran monoplane, the Winnie Mae. In the greatest mass flight in history, a squadron of Italian seaplanes commanded by Italo Balbo made a round trip flight from Italy to Chicago. The Lindberghs took the air for a survey of the northern air routes and extended it into a five-month trip through Europe and back across the south Atlantic to South America before they returned home.

and uncertainty the college student should be sent out into the world with a strong competitive spirit.
Today, competition is keen and our students should have the benefit of that disciplinary training which they can only receive by engaging in some type of athletic activity.
While we all heartily endorse an intra-mural program, yet these activities should not supplant our inter-collegiate program.
Inter-Collegiate
"Instead of de-emphasizing our sports—more emphasis should be placed on our inter-collegiate sports, especially the spirit of winning. I personally am of the opinion that it is a laudable ambition to enter any contest with the will to win.
Most of the colleges have cut down their expenditures—because of necessity. Football has usually been considered the only profit-making sport—but seventeen colleges in our district do not find it so. Nearly all are dependent upon gate receipts to help finance their programs.
"Only six colleges could carry on their athletic programs without gate receipts. We thus find ourselves in a rather complicated situation.
The public today, I am convinced, is more critical in its selection of football games. They still have money to spend to see a championship game. Not all of us can be champions, so we must get along with whatever we take in at the gate. Now if this is the case, then our expenditures must be reduced.
Constructive Ideas
"What I have to offer at this point is not given in a spirit of fault finding, but rather as a constructive effort on my part to give some ideas where money could be saved.
Speaking for a small college, I know it to be a thing of the past for us to expect a big guarantee from the larger institutions to play an early season football game. The principle of athletic competition be-

USES DYNAMITE TO SCARE WIFE
Cumberland County Man Held
In Jail; Wife Is Injured
In Blast.

Harrisburg, Dec. 28.—Secreting a stick of dynamite in a piece of firewood to "scare" his wife "a little" not only accomplished the purpose of Amos B. Myers, 43, of Shiremans-town, but also wrecked his stove, injured his wife and landed him in the Cumberland county prison, according to state police.
Myers was taken Tuesday night before Squire Ira Cargill, of West Fairview, on a charge of felonious assault and battery with intent to maim and was committed to jail in default of $1000 bail for the next term of court.
In his alleged confession, state policemen say that Myers related that he and his wife, Mrs. Alma Myers, were not getting along so well. He lived at his greenhouse while his wife stayed a short distance away in the home. Myers said.
Neighbors Aroused
On the night of December 21, according to the confession, Myers said he decided to scare his wife so he bored a hole in a piece of firewood and hid a stick of dynamite in the hole. After plugging the end of the hole, Myers slipped into the home and laid the wood on the top of a basket of firewood kept handy to start fire in the mornings.
At 5:45 o'clock the next morning, Mrs. Myers started to replenish her wood fire with more fuel and a few minutes later the house was in chaos. The stove lay in a wreck in one corner of the kitchen, Mrs. Myers was burned about the face and neighbors were crowding in the front door to learn what had happened.
TENNIS QUEEN IN RETIREMENT
Retirement Of Helen Wills
Moody From Tennis Opens Chances For Many.
BY ALAN GOULD
The retirement of Helen Wills Moody from tennis competition, at least for 1934 and possibly, for good, not only leaves the field wide open next year but marks the climax of perhaps as remarkable a career as we have ever had in sports, by man or woman.
Over a period of ten years the Californian, before and after her marriage to Frederick S. Moody, Jr., was not beaten in an American singles championship tournament. True, she did not compete annually without interruption. Illness twice kept her from the lists at Forest Hills prior to the circumstances which brought about her default last summer. But she nevertheless was completely dominant.
Since 1924, Mrs. Moody has met with only one real setback on European courts. That transpired in a special match on the Riviera in the winter of 1926 against Suzanne Lenglen. The famous French girl won in straight sets, 6-3, 8-6. It may seem like so much flag-waving to say that Lenglen was favored by the circumstances of this encounter, also that it came before the American girl was at the full power of her game and experience. The fact is, however, that many observers feel Mrs. Moody in her prime, from 1927 to 1932, inclusive, would have been more than a match for Lenglen or any other woman tennis player who ever reached the top.
The point is that for the better part of ten consecutive years, at home or abroad, Mrs. Moody was so far above most of her rivals that her tournament progresses became almost monotonously successful. In six years she did not lose so much as a single set at home or abroad. In no other sport, except for something like the long way Jay Gould sustained in court tennis, has there been any greater consistency of individual performance.
Sensible
Mrs. Moody has been criticized for walking abruptly from the championship match at Forest Hills against Helen Jacobs, her long-time California rival, last summer, the idea being that it would have seemed more graceful for Helen the First to have made a more sporting gesture in declining further issue. Instead, she walked away from there as quickly as she could, betraying to the last none of the emotion she must have felt.
To a woman who felt, as she said, that she was about to faint, the idea of avoiding further scene must have been uppermost in mind. Subsequently she was specific and outspoken in her praise of Miss Jacobs.
Over the stretch of years, furthermore, it is fair to say few American athletes in international competition have equaled Mrs. Moody's record for sportsmanship or deportment, on or off the courts.
PARK BOOKLET
A booklet describing interesting and historic features of Washington Crossing park has been prepared by the department of forests and waters. It will be ready for distribution in the near future.
